Mines and Minerals of Arizona

New York, June 18.—Mexican dollars, 47 1/2; silver, 59 1/2; copper and lead, unchanged.

The following is from the Mining Reporter, published in Denver: "From Arizona we learn that the prospecting season has about closed owing to the excessive heat; from the Colorado mountain districts we hear that the prospecting season has just opened because the snow is just leaving the hills. The prospecting season is always open in one or other western state or territory. That is why our development is proceeding by leaps and bounds. This year our compilation of statistics go far to show that the American production of metals will be so great that no other country will be a close second."

Unintentionally, perhaps, the Mining Reporter is doing Arizona an injustice. It is true that during the winter months prospecting in an ordinary year is carried on in certain sections of Arizona with greater vigor than in the summer time, owing largely to the fact that there is more water available in the mountain streams. But it must be remembered that during this same season a large part of Arizona, like Colorado, is cold and snowbound. In these portions of the territory the summer is the season for prospecting, as in Colorado. But in the southern part of the territory, especially in a year like 1901 when there is no shortage of water, prospecting can be carried on almost as well in the summer time as in the winter and with the exception of a few desert places the hills are now full of men searching for bright yellow gold. Though it is now midsummer there never was a time in the history of Arizona when more new prospects were being opened up and when mining operations were being carried forward on so extensive a scale. The facts are that Arizona is fast settling to a point where there will be twelve months of her mining year and her mining fields are so extensive and so great in variety that one who cares to look for gold can find an inviting outlook whenever he wants it.

YUMA COUNTY OIL NOTES.

The following oil notes are taken from the Yuma Sun.

Archie Priest, the oil expert, returned the latter part of last week from the Agua Caliente and Oatman Flat districts with a big supply of fine "indications." During his last trip he located five or six sections of land for a company of Arizona and California men, who will move in the matter of developing the field.

E. P. Grindell, who was an attaché of the Twenty-first legation, but who is now deep in the oil business, came down last Tuesday from Texas Hill, where he secured a tract of land for the Tucson company with which he is connected. He is thoroughly investigating the oil resources of the section about Yuma, and has assured the citizens that there will be oil wells spouting.

said to be of sufficient magnitude and value to cause one of the owners of the claims to leave for Washington Camp at once. Frank Olsen, formerly one of the owners of the Pride of the West mine at Washington Camp, will leave shortly for New York on mining business. He will visit the Pan-American exposition before returning to Arizona.

The Gold Road property, in Mohave county, Arizona, is developing into a nice little mine. The main shaft is down 125 feet, with levels extended at the depth of 100 feet. The workings are entirely in quartz of good milling grade. The outlook for this property is very favorable, and with sufficient development may be made a good mine.—Los Angeles Mining Review.

A late report from Wilcox, Cochise county, Arizona, announces another strike of copper ore at the Dos Cabezas mines. In which a number of prominent Los Angeles capitalists are interested. Major J. W. A. Off, of the State Bank and Trust company, Los Angeles, who is president of the Dos Cabezas company, when asked by a representative of the Los Angeles Mining Review if the report was correct, answered, "yes." He added that the secretary of the company was going to the mines next week and that on his return he would have further particulars about it.

The amount of ore taken out of the United Verde was never as large as it is now. Those who have paid any attention to ore being taken out of the mine to the road must have noticed this. A few months ago motors running out of the mine pulled ten to sixteen cars, the latter number being the limit; now it is no uncommon thing to see trains of thirty to thirty-six cars coming out of the five hundred. In the mine new ground has been opened up and the force of miners increased eighty per cent. The increase in the number of men employed by the mine is claimed, will reach the grand total of sixteen hundred men.—Rome Reporter.

Work is steadily progressing at the Great Belcher, says the prospect. The large shaft is now down about 550 feet and it is reported that it will be driven to the 1,000 foot level as soon as money and men can do it. When that level is reached it is proposed to crosscut and then drift until the property is thoroughly explored. The vein matter of the Great Belcher is a matrix of pyrite porphyry or felsite from twenty to two hundred feet wide lying in between granite on the east and porphyry on the west. To secure the values of the Great Belcher ore concentration is necessary. If the works as mapped out is carefully carried through few people in this country have little doubt but that the expectations of the company will be realized.

Speaking of the Cienegueta mines in the Sierra Madre, the Star says: "Judge William H. Barnes and Dr. J. M. Ford of Phoenix, left for Hermosillo, Sonora, Mexico, yesterday, for the purpose of closing the purchase of the famous Cienegueta mines located in the Sierra Madre. These mines are famous for the great wealth which have been produced by them. There are immense bodies of ore recovered of a rich grade and the enormous dump which can be worked over with profit. Wood and water are abundant. The altitude of the mines is 5,500 feet above sea level. Several million dollars of profitable working ore is in sight. Those who have visited these mines say they are fabulous in quantity and richness of ore. The purchasers are Judge Barnes, Dr. Ford and Colonel William Christy. Judge Barnes, it is said, has put an even $100,000 cash into the purchase."

The rumor is current this week that the Tennessee has changed hands and that the Needles smelter will be moved to Chloride. The Tennessee is the greatest producing silver-lead mine in Arizona and if it is sold it is for a large sum. A smelter is what Chloride wants to save ruinous transportation rates. No mining district can afford to work their big low grade mines with
